

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image processing method carries out a compression process which divides an image into a plurality of divided regions and compresses the divided regions in a state where each of the divided regions are independent of one another, and sets boundaries of the divided regions in order to approximately match boundaries of one or a plurality of image regions which are within the image and have aspect ratios and/or sizes different from those of the image.